SKELETON SKETCHES.

A WEEK OF CRIME IN ATLANTA.

A Wholesale Firm of Trapping—Extending all Through the City—Trapping the Criminals—The Work was Accomplished.

If there is any city in the south that has more than its share of thieves, ranging in age from the boy of 15 to the man of 60, it is Atlanta. Atlanta is actually alive with them. For the past week three or four robberies have been committed every night, and crime still continues to show its head in every quarter. In some instances stores have been broken into, and in others doors have been unlocked.

WITH SKELETON KEYS.

Yesterday Captain Connolly, together with Officers Brooks and Smith, succeeded in arresting a small boy upon a charge of having burglarized numerous stores in this city during the past week. The boy was taken by the name of Will Macey, and the others giving their names as Ed, John, and Harry. The boys were committed to the city jail. The arrest of this quartet of thieves brought about the recovery of large quantities of stolen plunder that had been collected within the past few days. Among the most prominent of these robberies which the boys had been connected with were the following: Hunt and Bellinger's store, broken into Friday night, and four bottles of whiskey stolen; the store of J. J. Williams, broken into Saturday night, and four bottles of whiskey stolen; the store of J. J. Williams, broken into Saturday night, and four bottles of whiskey stolen; the store of J. J. Williams, broken into Saturday night, and four bottles of whiskey stolen.
